INTERESTING STORY OF MISS JACKSON'S LABORS IN FRANCE

FORMER HIGH SCHOOL TEACHER
SUBJECT OF ARTICLE IN DES MOINES PAPER.

WONDERFUL ABILITY

Placed in Unusual Positions She Overcomes All Obstacles and Is Beloved by the Women Workers Under Charge

When Miss Helen Hunt Jackson, a teacher in the Janesville high school, took her "over seas" work many months ago, she took with her the well wishes of all who had known her. She was the one of the school who felt that her part in the great war by her presence on the other side.

She is now in France, at the Des Moines Sunday Register, a most interesting pen picture of Miss Jackson that will be published in the near future. It is a reproduction of one of the high school faculty it is republished.

Tours, France, Sept. 1918. I cannot be silent about Y. W. C. A. secretaries. I have called them apostles—the whole bunch. I take back nothing. They do not slip off to dances, they do not go to the movies. They have no high heels at luncheon—though they serve food. Every kind of American girl in France works hard, and needs, for health, a little recreation. I have seen, with you see, the Y. W. C. A. girl secretaries have no leisure.

It would be hard to find a more touching picture of a girl in France. Helen Jackson, daughter of Hon. A. E. Jackson of Tampa, Fla., a girl brought up in luxury, and submerged absolutely, for nearly a year past, in the midst of a lot of French munitionists. It was ever lot loose from the women's prison" of St. Lazare, Paris, to fill shells (greatly to their credit) for the victory of the allies. It is at the Carpentier cantonment of the walled pyrotechnic, three miles outside the city of Bourges—the greyest, dirtiest, most desolate place you ever saw, with not a speck of grass. Also it is dangerous.

Another Y. W. C. A. girl secretary, Miss Mary Porterfield, shares the danger, at the Bourges cantonment, but never the city, and of better class. The Y. W. C. A. foyer inside Bourges is run by Miss Helen Hendricks and Miss Mildred Nelson. They have the cheer of the big restaurant, but the pyrotechnic for their women employees living in town, two fine Y. W. C. A. gardens, two rest rooms, big and comfortable, and a large gymnasium, concert and entertainment building. The jonesome work of Helen Jackson and Mary Porterfield among the tough girls and forlorn women of the pyrotechnic's dangerous suburban powder plant seems to be the French girls live in barracks making shells.

To Help Crush Germany Eight thousand females are there, charging shells and making pyrotechnics. From the first, that they would always be girls recruited from all parts of France, a large portion of them former prisoners held by the Germans in the east, or else terrorized and melancholy, with a notable contingent of the output of St. Lazare when its doors were thrown open, two years ago, in the great need for munition workers.

They live in this walled cantonment, sixty women to a barrack, and whole families of many men live in the room. There is no nice, pretty, restful spot or view in that suburban waste.

The Y. W. C. A., on invitation of the French government through Miss Porterfield, opened the foyer, a building being given for each. They cleaned them out, painted the inside white, put up pictures, yellow curtains, with flowers in the windows, and fetched wicker furniture into the cool shade of it—plus a piano, a canary and a cat.

The canary died. Whence hangs a tale.

It was those tough St. Lazare girls: "They have fights in the dormitories," Miss Jackson admits. "They beat each other up, but never a word with us! (The 'us' is Miss Porterfield, two miles distant). One thing touched me. Three very bad girls, against whom everyone had warned me—they had been immoral and I knew it—heard me mourn the death of the canary, because I thought a yellow singing bird in a yellow cage was such a useful thing!"

Death of Yellow Canary Shows Real Heart of St. Lazare Girls

These three St. Lazare girls had two days' permission. They went to Paris—"on the spree" as the French woman superintendent assured her—"for certain," but, as a fact, it turned out that they spent Sunday morning at the Paris big market. They bought, all dragged and dusty from the train, they spent three hours selecting the finest singing canary in the biggest bird cage that money could buy. They did not wait to enjoy the day in Paris, but ate at the railroad "jopet" and made the late Sunday afternoon train back to Bourges, carrying the blessed bird and bird cage on their laps.

Sweltering August afternoon and stuffy night. It takes eleven hours! And all because they were in such a hurry to hang up the bird and bird cage in a certain little white and yellow rest room, with a card tagged to the gilded bars: "For Mademoiselle Miss."

Since March 10, 1918, she and Miss Porterfield have been out there, each in her own way, to speak, alone with the munition girls.

"They are bearing the burden of the war," she says. "The national defense, I think it is they who are carrying it. If they stop filling shells, the war stops. They work eleven hours a day; and nobody is doing anything for them but these Y. W. C. A. foyers."

"I do anything I can," continues Helen. "I have English classes four nights a week; and after working from 4 a. m. to 7 p. m., they come to study their English. Two other nights they have music and gymnasium classes. The remaining night I have a show of some kind. Every Saturday I have managed something. Once of the Dupre, the grand first long hair, came to Bourges. Another time I had the famous Roucher, director of the Paris Grand Opera, and his wife. They he is mobilized in Bourges, too. They are a woman of a wonderful infinite charm. As for Roucher, that man can do anything. When I have nothing else, I start them making theatricals. They delight to make their own costumes; and every one of them is sure that she has talent. Why not? Poor things, they have seen the depths, though young 'Mademoiselle Miss' Adopts a Couple Dozen War Orphans

"I have two sewing machines and training boards. They began by coming to do their week's ironing and mending. Then I got in tubs. Now they do their washing too, in an out room. 'It may not be much,' says the child of the Iowan, humbly, 'but they have nothing without it, so they appreciate it. It seems a lot. I have not an enemy; and they call me

"Mademoiselle Miss." That is how they address my postcards, on their vacations; and the Bourges postoffice seems to know, because I get them. "One girl, only 22 years old, comes to iron and sew. She has been married four years, to a husband who has been at the front every day since mobilization in 1914. He is one of those Chasseurs Alpins called up from Italy and thrown into the front line of last February. Soon, he was one of two only remaining in his regiment transferred, he was flung into the defense of Paris. Now he is chasing the boche. He still lives. She has seven brothers in the army, two of whom were killed the same week in last March's invasion. Her mother, a victim of German invasion, died of starvation. Working at munitions, she is the only of the family who earns money. So she keeps her baby in a crèche, and sends cash to her five brothers."

The babies are war orphans. Many have no fathers. Miss Jackson started with one "sweet little child" which is a darling. The mother began by leaving it with her while she worked. "I have a 3-year-old," she says. "I had no idea that my sister in America, who cannot come to France, might want to adopt it. She did. From that time on, I have had it at home, whom I have never seen, each supporting a girl baby whom their mamma leaves at the foyer while they work. It makes me month per child. It makes me a lot of extra work to translate all the letters."

She seems to consider it no work, all these babies crawling between her feet.

"Where do you eat?" I asked. "I have a little heating stove at the foyer, one of those little round stoves, top, have a little round round top. I have a man, a little round together, cook what we eat—toast, tea, jam and eggs. The worst is to do without sugar, for a month at a time, nothing except the French quarters master corps. I can buy only what French munition workers buy. I know how they live, because I live the same."

"With all those babies?" I wondered. "Stacks of them; but not the very little ones. I'd be afraid to break them. They are in the crèche. I only pay the sums. But when they're 3 years old and more, I'm not afraid of them."

"Do their mamma make much money?"

"It looks like good wages in France; and there are jokes about the earnings of girl munition workers. What nobody seems to consider is the price of living in these munition towns, which are so overpopulated. They earn a minimum of $1.40 per day; and as it is by the piece, they can make as much more as they want. They average from $1.60 to $2.00 per day. I know a few who go as high as $3.50 per day; but none get above it. Out of this they have to pay $1 per dozen for eggs, $1.20 per pound for butter, and so on. Bourges, of normally 36,000 population, has 150,000 people living in it, without a new building having been erected."

I marveled at the beautiful American girl, of wealth and tender upbringing, buried alive in that sordid pyrotechnic, with the toughest lot of munitionists of France.

Iowa Girl Is A Real Heroine; Sticks To Her Post Through All

French ladies warned her she could not succeed. "That kind" could not "appreciate," and would be so rough that they would break the furniture. The woman superintendent warned her to "never leave the place without locking it up, not a minute." But the girl from Iowa says, quite simply, "I have never had a sheet of paper mused, a chair put out of place, or lost the slightest object." The woman superintendent warned her particularly against a certain woman "from St. Lazare, with an awful record." Every day, in her two hours of repose, this woman was in the foyer. Finally, Miss Jackson asked her why she came. The dangerous party, looking up with grateful eyes, replied: "Because it is so quiet!"

Others marveled at the hardness of the life of Helen. Among them, the first, you may be sure, were watchful-eyed secretaries of the Y. W. C. A. (wise as serpents, harmless as doves, and a darned sight more useful).

Miss Alice Woolley, from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was running, in the beautiful town of Tours a beautiful foyer for smart, neat, enthusiastic shop girls and clerical employees—sixty had joined her French club in three weeks.

In Tours, all is sweetness and light. The Y. W. C. A. has an elegant business house, a signal corps women's club, which was a foremost tourist hotel before the war, a famous recreation island, and Miss Caroline Dow in person with a notable staff, vitally counted on by our army departments.

Tours is full of shops, flowers, Americans and all refinements.

"Come over to Macedonia and help us," signaled Miss Woolley, with sweet hypocrisy, from this prosperity to the lonely Iowa girl, growing thin, at last in her sad cantonment.

They found a nice girl secretary to substitute—quite easy—in the Y. W. C. A. They say "Go!" and she goes. "Come!" and she comes. The new girl will stick just as cheerfully as Helen, and that is just the "hick," as the French say, because nasty as the spot is, Helen made that foyer, and, of course, she loves it.

Already, she talks of returning. Miss Woolley devises daily pretenses to keep her, feed her up at the hostess house, and prolong the dip into a little refinement and ease which Y. W. C. A. counsels her for the saving, of their secretaries.

Flowers and fig trees of Capua are powerless! These be girl apostles!

Chicago started something in 1876, the opening year of the National league, and stole Al Spalding, pitcher, Jarvis White, catcher, Ross Barnes, second baseman, and Cal McVey, first baseman, from the champion Boston team of 1875. They were known as the "stoil" four.

This deal, however, had no baseball that teams had to buy players afterward.

The Detroit club paid a large sum for the franchise and players of the season of 1885. The "big four," Dan Brotherton, Hardy Richardson, Jim White and W. Rowe, were secured.

The Tigers, however, had to wait until 1878 to win their first National league pennant.

MORRIS MILLER

The custom of buying ball players dates back to the early '50s, writes an eastern scribe in discussing the subject. He goes to say that although the deals and prices paid were not as large as at the present time, it may interest some of the present day fans to recall some of the famous deals of early days as the old time records show. They created much interest then and the press of that decade had much to say pro and con. The sale custom followed the scandal of 1870, and rules were made that players should sign contracts and could not jump from team to team.

The Boston club wanted to land the National league pennant in 1887 and started the baseball world by paying $10,000 to Chicago for Catcher Mike Kelly, who helped the White Stockings to win in 1885 and 1888. This deal created as much of a sensation at that time as some of the present day sales and trades. Boston did not land the pennant with King Kelly, the $10,000 beauty, as he was called by the press. Boston wanted the pennant badly, and as the club had plenty of money in 1887, $10,000 was paid for Pitcher Clarkston of Chicago. Here was another big sensation. Kelly and Clarkston worked hard that season, but Boston got no higher than fourth place.

In 1888 the Detroit club paid Fred Dunlap a cash bonus of $2,000 for signing with Pittsburgh. Dunlap had played first base for the champion Tigers in 1887. Pittsburgh paid him $5,000, and with $2,000 bonus he was a top price player.

Another big deal during the season of 1887 was the purchase of the St. Louis Maroons for $12,000 by the Indianapolis team, which joined the National league that season.

Manager Chris Von der Ahe of the St. Louis Browns sold five players of the champion team of 1886, 1886 and 1887 for $22,000 at the close of the season of 1887. Pitchers Foutz and Caruthers with Catcher Bushong went to Brooklyn in the American Association. Billy Glavin, shortstop, an Art Welch, fielder, were sold to the Athletics. This was the biggest sale on record at this stage. In 1886 Manager Arthur Ivin of the Giants gave $4,000 and Harry Davis to the Pittsburgh team for Beckley. Later he got $2,000 from Scrappy Bill Joyce of the Washingtons for Pitcher Phynn and Catcher Duke Farrell. Pitcher Meekin of the Giants was bought for $4,000 in 1890 by the Boston team.

Kid Williams, the popular Baltimore boxer, will not enter the ring for several weeks. Williams has just recovered from a severe attack of pneumonia. He was taken ill during the epidemic and for a time it was believed he would not survive. However, he is well now for future contests. Due to his illness Williams was unable to appear in any of the exhibition shows given in the east for the benefit of war workers.

SOUTH AMERICA THE U. S. BUSINESS FIELD

CHICAGO BANK ADVISER TELLS
TWILIGHT CLUB OF OPPOR-TUNITIES FOR TRADE
IN NEIGHBORING COUNTRY.

GREAT ADVANTAGES

Increased Shipping Facilities of This Country Offer Rare Chance To Control Trade.

South America as a future field for American commerce was presented to members of the Twilight club last night by Walter Lichtenstein, foreign trade adviser of the First National bank, Chicago. Dr. Lichtenstein's address was illustrated by lantern slides showing various states in Latin America, including Chile, Peru, Colombia and Bolivia.

"The question of whether the United States will retain the trade it had before the war or gain more depends largely upon our shipping marine," declared Mr. Lichtenstein after he had taken the club members through some of the states. "We will be unable to hold all the trade unless we have facilities for giving excellent shipping service."

Like French Styles.
"It is not likely that we will be able to sell a great amount of clothing for the South Americans prefer the French and English styles and, and such receptacles as will furnish display for instance take fountain pens if they are put in separate boxes, the chances are that they will remain under cover in the display window and the public will not get an opportunity to look at them unless it makes the request."

"The establishment of branch United States banks has had the effect of sending more of our business to South America. It is natural to believe that if a South American business man seeks information concerning foreign trade he will go to a bank and naturally the banker will refer him to business men in his own country. That is the reason that Germany and England have obtained new business every year. Our American banks in those countries are following the same policy and it is working well."

Must Use Right Language.
"Business men should carry on their correspondence in the language that is spoken in the country and not in English language on a people who use it very little. If the language of the country cannot be used, then by all means use the French, which is almost a standard in most of the states."

Development of iron and coal to any great extent has not been carried on in any states in South America, Dr. Lichtenstein declared, and for that reason manufacturing development would naturally be slow.

"Of all the countries of South America, Chile has the warmest feeling for the United States," said Dr. Lichtenstein. "It perhaps has expressed its preference for this country in line with diplomatic policy. Chile is in the front war, Chile does not like us very well. It has something alleged grievances which it continues to nurse."

Better U. S. Houses Needed.
That it was the duty of the United States government to provide better quarters for diplomats sent to South American republics was a declaration made by Dr. Lichtenstein.

"South Americans are impressed by show," he said. "They judge a person by the display he makes. Our ministers are judged by the showing they make. They are not contented to make a poor showing because of their inadequate residences. It is to the interest of the business men of this country to see that this non-English country is changed into an English States governmental representatives are properly provided with suitable quarters."

John F. Arnold, vice-president of the First National bank, Chicago, had been invited to address the club, but could not come because of a business trip in the east. Mr. Arnold is in charge of the foreign trade department of his bank.

The meeting was presided over by Andrew J. Gibbons. The topic for discussion for the January meeting was announced as "Japan's Position After the War."

James A. Craig was chosen as leader for that evening.

Two dry town drinkers were the only men to make their appearance before Judge Maxfield in the municipal court this morning.

Both men were fined $5.00 and admitted that they came from towns where the ban on liquor was tight and that in order to quench their thirst they came to Janesville.

The first of the two hailed from Beloit and after telling the judge the reason for his visit to Janesville he was assessed fifteen dollars and costs.

Ralph Giever comes from Stoughton and has been dry for several years, but Ralph used to go to Edgerton to quench his thirst, but since Edgerton also went dry he is now forced to come to Janesville. He will be here for the next twenty days unless he pays a fine of fifteen dollars and costs.

The timely arrival and work of the department of the blaze which had gained a good headway was stopped and the fire extinguished without a very large loss. The fire was started by friction in the plant of the company.

Mr. Louis Kerstel, owner of the company, in discussing the fire this afternoon stated that he was unable to give an estimate of the loss at the present time but he did not think it would be very large.

RED CROSS DRIVE MACHINERY MOVING

Clerical Force at Chamber of Commerce Ready to Care for Details of Membership Campaign.

The clerical machinery of the Chamber of Commerce which will handle the details of Red Cross membership drive is set in motion this morning by Frank Green, secretary of the chamber and assistant chairman of the campaign committee. Miss Frank N. Edwards who is in charge of the drive, will receipt of funds which will pour into the office as soon as the corps of workers start out on the drive Monday.

Supplies have been sent out to all committees by Lee Larkin supply manager and distribution of posters and placards which are to be shown in business places and factories has been completed. Some of the business men have responded generously to the call to aid in the publicity campaign and have hung the posters in their windows. Others have been satisfied with putting them up on walls. It is desired by the general committee that the posters be displayed in the windows so that the desired effect may be obtained.

One of the strongest publicity stunts has been furnished by J. M. Bostwick and Sons. Joseph Gunther one of the managers of the store, has put in a window display that makes a strong appeal to the public. The window is artistically decorated and calls attention to the need of an intensive campaign. Other business houses including the Golden Eagle will have window displays before the campaign starts.

A chart showing the progress of the campaign has been arranged and will be hung at the Chamber of Commerce so that a tally of the work done by each committee will be kept each day.

Although the personnel of the committees that will make the canvass has been completed the names will not be published until tomorrow.

WILL ADOPT A NEW DELIVERY SYSTEM

Retail Merchants Discuss New Delivery System at Meeting Held at Chamber of Commerce Last Evening.

Janesville retail dealers at a meeting held at the Chamber of Commerce last evening decided to establish a new delivery system in Janesville. The plan on more than one delivery a day has been lifted by the government and it is the desire of the merchants to put a new system into effect as soon as possible.

Several plans for a new system were discussed at the meeting, but nothing definite was decided on and it is the desire of the committee in charge to complete plans as soon as possible. The one delivery a day has been in use here for months past and has not met with the approval of the people and it was thought advisable to adopt a new system as soon as the ban was lifted by the government.

MYERS THEATRE.

"Seven Days' Leave." A big spectacular London military drama, which will be presented at the Myers theater Sunday, December 15, matinee and evening. It is now in its eighteenth month of continuous run at the Lyceum theater, London, England, and recently closed a six months' run at the Park theater, New York, to tremendous business.

The story of the play concerns principally a rollicking young major, back in London on a leave of absence, with buoyancy and heart enough to fall in love with a certain young woman who incidentally becomes his wife. But Cupid has fairly opened his eyes to this affair, when enters again sinisterly the clutch of the conflict whose rours can still be heard within the heavens, and from romance the play instantly stiffens to the tense thrill of danger for both the forlorn principal and his fiancée, and indeed all about them who are. Many of the phases of life in London as it is at present—hazards of spies leveling of estates, awakening of a finer spiritual note—fall into the denouement. There is a thrilling denouement when a submarine is exploded in view of the audience.

Myers Theater. America's Lady Military band, the world famous patriotic musical organization now touring the west will make its advent in Janesville tomorrow evening with a complete program at the Myers theater.

The organization has toured nearly all of the United States and during their travels have entertained over one million of our men in service at the various cantonments and naval bases. They have also taken part in the various liberty loan, war work campaign and other patriotic drives doing all the work voluntarily and at their own expense.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Peter Myers, manager of the theater, the organization will come here for a special concert beginning at 8:15 on Thursday evening and the program will also consist of a complete diversified entertainment, with band and orchestra selections and also a special feature in the form of the world famous film spectacle "The Battlefronts of France" the very first showing of this stirring war photograph of actual scenes of the great struggle. Mr. Ray V. Troy, well known New York star and formerly one of the most versatile entertainers on the comedy stage is at the head of this organization and during the course of the evening program he will relate many humorous recitals of various happenings and experiences on the lighter side of military life.

This organization has on every occasion aided the Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus, and other war working organizations and also aided in the gigantic war work campaign drive in Chicago, volunteering their services in order to help put the country's quota over the top. It will be their first real visit in the state of Wisconsin and the patriotic citizens of Janesville are ready to accord them a royal welcome. The price of admission have been arranged so as to give everyone an opportunity to see this rare attraction at the least possible figure. Civil war in England lasted from 1642 to 1650—eighteen years—being contemporaneous part of the time with the Thirty Years war, which divided all Germany into two opposing camps. It found the empire with a population of 16,000,000, and left it with less than 5,000,000.

The total palm sugar production of India is stated in an authoritative publication to be about 300,000 tons, of which Bengal produces roughly 100,000 tons, worth $2,400,000. India's total production of sugar, both from cane and palms, is somewhere about 3,000,000 tons a year.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I received an address from a U. S. boy in France who had been with me for a while. At least he asked me to wait for him and I promised to do so, thinking it would cheer him. At the same time, I was deeply in love with another boy who loved me, but who had not asked me to wait, but now he has returned and has asked me, "What shall I do?" PERPLEXED.

Write to the soldier you have never met and tell him that you are in love with another man. It was ridiculous to become engaged through correspondence.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My soldier boy left for France over five weeks ago and I have heard nothing from him. We were engaged. Do you think he has forgotten me? I have been true to him. I thought he wasn't I would go with another whom I believe I could love.

DOUBTFUL. There are many reasons why you do not hear from the boy. If you go so little faith in him that you are willing to give him up in this time, probably you had better forget him. Your love is not deep enough to permit marriage, it is evident.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl who is engaged to a man who is a soldier. He is in training. Do you think he is too old for me? I do not feel as other girls say they do when they are in love. I admire him and respect him, although we have not been together long. Would you advise me to wait for him? I love him so much. Just what is love?

Eight years is not too much difference when you marry. You are three years older than you should be to know your own mind, and you should wait before taking so important a step as marriage.

The most important factor in love is compatibility of tastes. Thrills do not come to all people, and they are not an indication of a lasting love. If there is the slightest doubt in the mind, do not marry. I consider you too young to be engaged.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl sixteen and am in my third year of high school. I am considered good-looking and intelligent. I have never gone out much with boys, but I entertain a boy at home occasionally. When I go to a dinner or a party I have plenty of chances to be escorted home by my boy friends.

Should I allow the same boy to regularly escort me home, or should I come with different ones? A. S. S.

If you regard all the boys who ask you as friends accept the first one who asks to take you home.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl not old enough to entertain formally. What would you suggest for a small informal party?

At the library you can find a book and magazines on entertaining. Play the games that appeal to you. Simply word your invitations informally.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: It is proper for an engaged girl to let her boy friend come to see her every night in the week?

Every night in the week is too often for a girl to let her fiance call upon her. One or two evenings a week are enough.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Would you consider it patriotic to make sweets, such as candy, cake, etc., for the boys who are in training?

It is all right, but raisins or other dried fruits would be more patriotic.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girls of nineteen. Both of us work during the day and have only one night free during the week. Could you suggest something that we could do at home to make some money?

THANK YOU. About the only thing you can do is sew or iron. Perhaps you could darn stockings for some family, or do fancy ironing. You really ought to have one night for recreation.

In reply to a "Friend at Camp Greene": I should judge from the stationery upon which you wrote your letter that you are interested in the war activities of the Knights of Columbus. Tell some one in charge your problem and I am sure you will be given all possible assistance.

Naturally you are very lonely after the recent death of your mother.

least distrust of Ned the slightest inclination to say, "I told you so!" instead of coming at once to his aid. Edith would never forgive him. In such crises women are impatient with causes; they want only effects. As she waited for John to speak Edith was as much afraid for John's sake as for her brother's. She did not want to despise her husband.

He listened gravely to her brief recap of Ned's plight.

"You must first ask Ned whether he would want me to do anything in this matter," he said finally.

Edith breathed more freely. Her husband had struck the right note. She kissed him and ran to find her brother.

A few minutes later Ned Flowerwhite came up to John Perrot and grasped his hand.

"I haven't the slightest idea of letting you get mixed up in my trouble, John," he said, his voice vibrant with sincerity. "But I sure do ap-

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

THE CONTRIBUTING CAUSE

A cursory review of medical literature of the past ten years in the endeavor to find any scientific evidence upon which the notion of exposure as a contributing cause of so-called "colds" might be based, has proved a great disappointment, though not by any means a waste of time. Every little while there cropped up some intimation data which added to the conviction that exposure in this sense, is really a negligible matter.

I have not only combed the literature, but I have neglected no apparent opportunity to obtain such data as a colleague may have seemed to have in his keeping. For instance, as eminent member of the Rockefeller Institute Research Hospital staff wrote a scientific article about the treatment of pneumonia, which particular reference to the newly described bacteriological differentiation of the type of pneumonia germ accountable for the individual attack. The doctor casually referred to the open air treatment of pneumonia, and stated that it has proved valuable because it has added materially to the comfort of the patient, if for no other reason. He believed it had appreciably diminished the death rate. He advised physicians employing the open air treatment to caution nurses attending pneumonia patients under such treatment to dress them properly, for he had known nurses so engaged to contract pneumonia. This anomalous statement, in the serum treatment—aroused my interest, so I asked the doctor for details. He replied that he had observed but one instance of a nurse contracting pneumonia while in the open air herself contacting pneumonia. The nurse wore a face mask. So I suppose we can not deny that she was not properly dressed when the doctor based his opinion that nurses not warmly clad are more susceptible to pneumonia than nurses ceptible to pneumonia than nurses bundled up with extra clothing. Physical comfort is a body need which may be left to instinct. So far as disease is concerned it is absurd to advise a mentally normal child or adult to avoid "exposure". As a matter of everyday observation, the more competent the physician the less frequently he offers such advice. And likewise, the more intelligent the layman the less thought he gives to the matter of "exposure". You will find that the most benighted people take the greatest possible pains and go to the most ridiculous extremes to avoid exposure, and these very people attribute the greatest number of body ills to the effects of exposure.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
SBA. How much boric acid should be dissolved in water to make a solution of the proper strength for bathing the eyes of a child in the eye? Does boric acid relieve redness or congestion of the eyes? (Miss G.)

ANSWER—The usual strength is a saturated solution of boric acid in freshly boiled water, that is, all the boric acid the water will dissolve and then some, allowing the excess to settle to the bottom and using the clear liquid. The water will dissolve more than one ounce of boric acid (tablespoonful) more or less. It does not influence redness or congestion as less these symptoms are caused by inflammation dependent upon infection. Boric acid is an antiseptic and a mild irritant. One S. S. B. A. (saturated solution of boric acid) is a standard eye wash in hospitals and clinics.

Asthma and Protein. Is it possible for a child to get asthma from eating eggs? (C. B. W.)

ANSWER—Yes, if the child happens to be "sensitized" to egg albumin. In fact, asthma is a common condition, which comes at irregular intervals and does not remain constantly. It is probably caused by some food or some other factor in the food or otherwise entering the blood, as for instance, the protein of eggs. In this case, the child is allergic to certain bacteria absorbed from a septic focus somewhere in the body.

precitate your wanting to do it after the mess I've made of things! It's worth a lot to me, the way you and Edie have put up with me! Some day I'll be able to say suddenly. The chasm between his hope and the prospect of its realization opened before him and took the heart out of him. The sight of Edith looking with pathetic hopefulness at her husband, prompted John to say:

"Of course you'd do anything you want to do, but this thing work out all right and there'll be no stopping you!"

"I certainly hope so!" came a shrewd voice from the corner. "But you'd better be careful. What would become of me if I were to be given on Dec. 14, in the home of Mrs. F. W. Siver, Grand avenue, Milwaukee. The party will be for the children of the Revolution and will be given by the Daughters."

Little Mary wrote the song after hearing the message of thrift sent out by the D. A. R. It is entitled "Keep the Thrift Thought Thriving" and is sung to the melody "Keep the Home Fires Burning." The words are as follows:

We are summoned by our country. We are called on, every one. Are we ready with our answers? Will you save now that we've won? Let's not let our savings slip away. Help the thrift campaign along; And the right way to begin it, is to sing our chosen song.

CHORUS. Keep the thrift thoughts thriving. While our stamps were driving. Stated we're saving, bit by bit, Our bits all count; A bit of wise combining Of dimes and quarters shining Will help reach the two billion mark. Our pledges amount.

Though the drive is on for money, Yet our aim is something more; Let us learn to be more thrifty. As one lesson of this war. Let us save our dimes and dross; Let us save in food and dress; For those boys, our gallant brothers Over there, have done no less.

Superstitions of Seamen. If a man is ill at sea, his most critical time is when land is first sighted. If he survives an hour after the sighting of land he will recover. On some travelers whistling is forbidden—it scares away the fish. Other skippers believe that to wash your face in the middle of a trip will break a spell of calm weather.

Mr. Happy Sun was up bright and early, and from his blue sky shone down with cheerful warmth. From Billy Bunny awoke with a sweet song singing in his ear. What was it? It sounds so sweet and clear that the little rabbit opened his eyes and listened. "There it came again across the Pleasant Meadow like a song of promise. Somehow, it made the little rabbit happy, and jumping out of bed he ate his breakfast in a hurry and then he hopped over to the Old Snake Dance.

"Tir-rell-oo, tir-rell-oo!" sounded the music of a bird.

It was a beautiful whistle, clear as a silver bell, and the little rabbit took a hop, skip and jump, for some how he felt happier than he had felt for a long, long time.

At first Billy Bunny thought it might be Johnny Jay who was whistling. But then, thought the little rabbit, he never whistled so sweetly as this. So Billy Bunny hopped along over the dry, golden grass which had been pressed down tight all winter by the heavy snow drifts, past the Old Chestnut Tree, where Timmy Chipmunk used to gather his nuts and seeds, and he saw the little rabbit.

HOW IT ALL HAPPENED

"That's very true," remarked Colonel Harta Beeton, although nobody had been speaking. "But one of my experiences has been quite as thrilling, ha, ha, ha!"

"Don't mention it," muttered another member of the club, as he hurriedly left the room.

Several others followed until the Colonel resumed.

"You see, it was the time I was hunting seagulls in Africa that I came face to face with the most magnificent king of beasts I ever saw, bah, bah, bah. The lion must have measured twelve feet from nose to tail. Even at that dangerous moment, I couldn't help admiring his commanding presence, don't you know?"

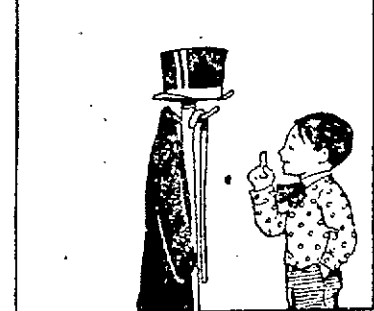

"Well, when the brute saw me, he gave a great spring. I was too frightened to move, and the lion leaped at me, his jaws snapping too high, and would you believe it, gentlemen; that lion was so disappointed that tears streamed down his face when he looked at me, and—bah—bah—shamefully dashed away into the jungle."

"And that isn't all. The next day, I set out again in the same part of the country and if there wasn't the same lion in an open space in the jungle practising low jumps! Ha, ha!"

Gets Sweater.

Escanaba, Mich.—A sweater knitted by an Escanaba girl and given to the American Red Cross, was sold into the hands of an Escanaba boy. This unique coincidence came to light recently when word was received from Ned Haring of this city. Young Haring wrote that when the supplies were distributed "over there" he was given a sweater by the Red Cross. It developed that the garment was knitted by Miss Mildred Hagan, a school teacher at Wells. Miss Hagan lives within two blocks of Haring's home.

Dedicate Service Flag.

Grant Rapids—A service flag with fifty blue stars and three gold stars has been presented to the Indian agency, representing the Winnago Indians that have answered the country's call and are members of the Wisconsin Winnago band. The flag was the gift of the Adahwagan Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The presentation was made by Regent Mrs. P. Mackinnon and Mrs. Ivan Babcock, registrant.

Poisoning by means of phosphorized grain is said to be an effective means of checking the increase of rabbits in certain parts of the British colonies.

SIDE TALKS

—BY—
RUTH CAMERON

"All this talk about germs!" I heard an elderly woman say, "makes me tired. And all this business of sterilizing bottles and spoons and what not. And never taking a baby on the cars. Why, I've got a grandson who's never been brought to see me! And he's two years old."

As you may have suspected, the sort of grandmother who thinks the modern ways of safeguarding babies' health are all nonsense, was talking. "No never had any such notions about children when I was bringing up mine," she said; "and I don't see but what they were just as healthy. I used to take my babies to see my mother-in-law from the time they were a month old. She'd have had something to say if I hadn't. All poppycock, I call it. They'd be better off if they weren't fussing over so much. And another thing, I haven't any use for all this antitoxin and vaccination and fresh-air business when they're sick."

As I listened to the above tirade, a queer picture rose in my mind. I saw a little old-fashioned babying ground in a small New England town which I visited last summer. Having a deep interest in reading the history of a community from all kinds of sources, I had stopped at some of the inscriptions and guessed at some of the stories behind them. And the most pathetic of all the tales was the tale of the dead babies. In one place there were five small stones in a row. The dates on them are only three years apart. The ages of the children range from a year to four years.

An Epidemic, Doubtless. In another place there were four deaths in one family in one month. All of children between the ages of one month and seven years (very likely an epidemic of small-pox or diphtheria in the days before antitoxins and vaccines).

These are striking examples, but there were many families where the deaths of three or four children were recorded. Doubtless the children who lived were as healthy as those today; but don't forget—you who laugh at the care we take today—the many, many babies who didn't live.

And let you think that statistics usually taken in a New England graveyard are not sufficiently reliable, let me offer other figures which certainly speak truth if figures ever can.

According to figures based on life insurance statistics, the number of deaths for children under five has been decreased twenty-six per cent in the ten years between nineteen hundred and nineteen eleven. The great gains made before that date.

Doesn't that make "all this talk about germs" seem a little more than nonsense?

FOR VARIETY.
Salmon Butter—Prepare salmon as directed, turn into a food chopper and form a paste crowned with butter and seasoning of onions, celery, garlic, radish, green pepper or cheese. This butter may be used for sandwiches or piped through a small pastry bag into omelets for various relishes. A little whipped cream adds to lightness.

Creamed Salmon and Rice—Make sauce of one cup milk, one tablespoon of butter substitute, and one tablespoon of flour, salt, paprika and one teaspoon of lemon juice. Cook until smooth and add the salmon to half of it. Line a buttered bread pan with steamed or boiled rice, fill the center with the hot salmon, cover the top with rice and steam one hour. Turn out onto a hot platter, use remaining sauce over the top, sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve in place of meat and potatoes. Variations: This may be served plain with all the sauce in the salmon and the steamed rice piled high on the other platter, and the salmon on the other half, or the salmon in the center and the rice all around it garnished with bits of celery leaves.

Escalloped Codfish—Let one pound of codfish soak in cold water several hours. Then turn off water, dredge it in place in buttered baking dish and pour over it a thick white sauce. Sprinkle bread or cracker crumbs on top and bake 15 to 20 minutes.

Macaroni and Oysters—Put a layer of cooked macaroni in a greased baking dish, then a layer of oysters, season with butter substitute, salt and pepper. Add a layer of white sauce. Repeat until the dish is full. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake until crumbs are brown and the whole dish heated through.

Rice may be used instead of macaroni.

GOOD RECIPES.
Peanut Loaf—One cup ground peanuts, one cup bread crumbs, one cup boiled rice, one-half cup tomatoes or one-quarter cup tomato catsup, one egg, salt, pepper, two tablespoons minced onion. Combine the ingredients, turn the mixture into a greased pan, and bake it in a moderate oven for 30 minutes. Serve it with pimento sauce.

Pimento Sauce—Make a medium white sauce and add chopped pimentos.

Cream of Celery Soup—Take the coarse outer stalk of the celery, scrub well and cut into half inch lengths; put into a sauce pan with water, cover and cook until tender. Do not cover the pan. Drain and save water. Mash the celery through a colander, return to the water and boil for ten minutes; then strain into a double boiler.

Each cup of celery water add a cup of hot milk. Season with salt and pepper and for each pint of liquid add one teaspoon of butter and one teaspoon of cream. Rub through a sieve for five minutes. Serve with a little dried or freshly chopped parsley on top.

Leftover Creamed Potatoes—To cold creamed potatoes add grated cheese to taste. Place in a well-greased baking dish. Cover top with bread crumbs and brown in a quick oven.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

CHATEAU THIERRY.
There it was that Freedom stood,
On the precipice of death;
There it was that all that's good
Cultured in war's poisonous breath.

There the weary and oppressed,
Almost crushed by brutal might,
Met disaster, breast to breast,
And despairing, turned to flight.

For an instant hope was dead—
Lost was all for which men strive,
Then, with starry flag overhead,
The Americans arrived.

Not in numbers were they strong,
Greater was the force of might;
Six were fighting for the wrong,
'Gainst each youth who fought for right.

Into war's grim jaws they ran—
Scarce ten thousand in the line,
But each one of them a man,
Sent there by the Will Divine.

"Too late! too late!" the feeble cried,
"Truth is overwhelmed by crime!"
And to the faltering they replied:
"No, not too late, but just in time!"

Halted the rush of might and greed,
Wave after wave of Prussians came,
To crush the best of Freedom's breed,
Burning their way with guns and flame.

One against six they fought that day,
But when those tragic hours had fled,
Freedom no longer stood at bay,
The hope of tyranny was dead.

There turned life's tides from hate to love,
When that ten thousand brave appeared,
To stand for truth. In Heaven above
Even the angels must have cheered.

At Chateau Thierry! Mark the place,
Tear high some monument of fame
To show to every age and race
Where free men broke the will of shame.

Let children learn, in years to be,
That there is truth's most faithful hour,
Ten thousand sons of fathers free
Vanquished the tyrant's lust for power.

Tell them that there, when hope had fled,
America, with flag unfurled,
Stood by the living and the dead
And Freedom saved for all the world.

Christmas Offer

We Give

Dessert Molds This Week to Users of Jiffy-Jell—See Offer Below

Jiffy-Jell

The New-Grade Gelatine Dainty For Desserts and Salads

Fruit-Juice Essences In Glass Vials
A Bottle in Each Package

Fresh-Fruit Desserts

Of the Finest Fruits—At Trifling Cost With a Wealth of Fruit-Juice Essence

Note the fruity delights which Jiffy-Jell puts at your instant call. And now, when you need fruit, and fruit is so costly.

Each package of Jiffy-Jell contains the flavor in liquid form, in a vial. Each fruit flavor is an essence, condensed from the juice of the fruit.

The flavors are abundant. We use half a ripe Pineapple to make one vial of flavor. We use 65 Loganberries to make another—all for one dessert.

All the fragrance and flavor, all the healthfulness of the fresh, ripe fruit are concentrated in this vial. And, sealed in glass, the essence keeps its freshness. So Jiffy-Jell desserts and salads taste like fresh-fruit dainties.

Rare-grade gelatine, ready-sweetened and prepared, comes in the package with the flavor. You simply add boiling water, then the flavor from the bottle, and pour in molds to cool.

Jiffy-Jell differs vastly from the old-style gelatine desserts. Their flavors come in dry form, mixed with the gelatine.

True-fruit flavors cannot keep in that way. The finest flavors are impossible.

In Jiffy-Jell you get a fruit-juice essence sealed in glass. You get a wealth of the fresh-fruit flavor. You get the fresh-fruit healthfulness. It is like using the fruit itself.

This is the new-day gelatine dainty. It has brought to millions already a new idea of gelatine desserts. Now we urge you to enjoy it.

Also for Salads, Etc.

Lime-fruit flavor makes a tart, green salad jelly. Serve it with your salad or mix the salad in before cooling. Use cooked or uncooked vegetables—left-overs will do. Or mix in meat scraps and make a delicious meat loaf—meat in aspic.

Mint flavor makes fresh-mint garnish jelly for serving with cold meats or roast lamb.

Any fruit flavor makes delightful fruit salad.

We want you to know these dainties—now when you need them most. So we make these mold offers to induce a prompt trial. Try Loganberry or Pineapple as a dessert, also try Lime or Mint. Try two of the flavors for your own sake—this week, and you are entitled to any of these gifts.

It's a Revelation

Jiffy-Jell differs vastly from the old-style gelatine desserts. Their flavors come in dry form, mixed with the gelatine.

LOANI BAND HAD INTERESTING MEETING

A musical program, "Songs of the Nations," was a feature of the meeting of the Loani Band, held last evening at the Congregational church. Miss Ada Lewis was in charge of that part of the evening's entertainment, and the music was characteristic of the country and was beautifully given by the young ladies, who were dressed in appropriate costume.

Miss Ada Lewis was attired as a French maiden and sang the "Marseillaise." She also led in the singing of "Keep on Hoping," a new popular song which was the opening number, and "Over There" and "Long Trail," which the audience sang at the close of the evening.

Miss Lois Thorne sang an old Scotch song, "A Wee Bird Cam to My Hall Door," and Miss Eva Jones played a Swiss gavotte composed by Hans Huber. Miss Irene Lewis, attired as Columba, sang two selections, "How Beautiful America," which was composed by Prof. Sleeper of Beloit college, and a little soldier song, "Khaki Sammie," by Carpenter. Miss Florence Chesser, attired as Russia, played a mazurka by Myrskii, and an Oriental by Cesar Crut. Miss Clara Shawan gave two songs in Italian, "Good Bye Soldier," by Tosti, and the Garibaldi war hymn.

A little playlet was given by the Junior G. E. society, called "The Lopsided Family," which was very well done, and afforded entertainment as well as provoking serious thought. It emphasized the idea of growth along

Two Deserters Captured.
 Appleton—Two deserters from the U. S. navy have been captured by the local police. The two sailors are Harold Curvick, alias Harold Wade, and Lloyd Wesley Grant, alias Jack Brown. The former's home is in Berlin, the latter's in Wisconsin. They were arrested from the battleship Minnesota at Philadelphia on Nov. 12. Each had $100 saved up and they came westward. The two men were taken to Milwaukee and will be later sent to Camp Grant, where they will appear before the naval court martial.

Community Interested.
 Green Bay. The woman's committee of the Council of Defense in Brown county is greatly interested in a plan which has been submitted to the state council for a community Christmas tree in every district in Wisconsin. The plan now is being considered by the local organization and undoubtedly will be adopted. The plan in brief is to have united community Christmas celebrations, starting Dec. 26 and continuing for a week. Friday, Dec. 26, would be the Christmas in the schools, and it is suggested that school children make an offering for the fatherless children in France. On the following day the child welfare departments are asked to arrange a Christmas party for all the children in the community whose fathers are in the service. Sunday is to be Christmas in the churches with the usual services. Monday would be observed with the lighting of the community Christmas trees. In connection with the Christmas tree program, it is suggested that an untimely tree be placed beside the community tree and dedicated to the fatherless children of France. During the week tags would be sold for the benefit of the movement and as the tags go by these tags will be hung upon the bare branches until the close of the celebration. Tuesday, Christmas eve, would be reserved for carol singers and the placing of candles in the windows to light the wayfarer. Wednesday, Christmas day, would be the home day, and Thursday would be the real community Christmas, for which the leaders of all musical organizations would be enlisted to pour forth their Christmas music.

GERMAN WOMEN ASK MRS. WILSON TO URGE MODIFICATION OF ARMISTICE TERMS; MORE HUN CUNNING SEEN IN MOVE

In official messages by wireless leading German women, acting for their country, recently asked Mrs. Wilson, the president's wife, and Jago Adams to seek modification of the armistice terms. The women asked that the rolling stock of the German railways, demanded by the allies, be left to Germany to haul food for the "real sufferers of the war—the women and children." The U. S. and allies are planning to handle the food situation in Germany at the proper time. Gertrude Baumer and Alice Salomon, two of the women leaders, sent their appeal to Mrs. Wilson. Dr. Anita Augspurg of Munich, appealed to Miss Jane Addams.

WHO'S WHO in the Day's News

MAJ. JAMES HAZEN HYDE.

Maj. James Hazen Hyde, president of the Harvard Club of Paris, American Red Cross representative in France and among those who have given their best energies in unselfish promotion of America's great overseas undertakings has long devoted his thought and effort to the cause of a French-American rapprochement. He is now taking a leading part in Red Cross reconstruction work in France. Wealthy, finely trained, one time a figure of great prominence in business, Mr. Hyde has been an effective representative of America in his long years residence in France.

This noted New Yorker, early in the war urged that America should give a strong demonstration of her sympathies with the entente cause. In 1916 he was urging a Pan-Atlantic alliance against Germany. When the United States went into the war, therefore, it was only natural that Mr. Hyde should throw all his energies into the advancement of the American and Entente cause.

The seriousness of one—the happiness in the obligation of the other

But both are badges of honor—one standing for exceptional valor on the battlefield—the other, for membership in the greatest of all humanitarian organizations, your American Red Cross.

The work of the soldier is practically finished.

The work of the Red Cross has really just begun.

Your membership and the moral support such membership gives are essential in carrying on Red Cross activities.

Let us all realize that in our happiness of another Christmas of Peace and Plenty—let us not forget the sufferings and privations of our war-torn friends across the sea—let us make our Christmas festival a Red Cross Christmas with full membership in every American home.

Put your flag in your window—let your neighbors know you haven't forgotten Belgium—and France—and our boys who remain overseas.
